December 2022

A Message from the Director of Church of Peace

CHARVONNE CARLSON, NST, CM, CH

Hello All,

The season of giving is upon us. Remember that during the holiday season let us be mindful of those who are alone, sad and/or have challenges during this time of year. Let us be benevolent in Spirit, Kind in words and show grace in our actions.

This month there are many activities happening to bring Holiday Cheer to all.

What are your plans? I am attending a city wide meditation in the New Year. I will be visiting with family and friends. Attending the annual Candlelight service held by the NSAC Licentiate Ministers and Certified Mediums Society. And hope to catch a tour of a Victorian Mansion decorated for the Holidays.

We will be holding service the morning of December 25th. It will be our candle-light service. During the meditation portion we will honor our loved ones who have transitioned with a prayer and a moment of silence. We will read their names as we hold a candle. Please bring a candle, (real or battery operated), to this service.

We have an ask? We are looking for articles, jokes, recipes and children related contributions for our monthly newsletter. If you would like to contribute, take a look at the different sections of our newsletter and email: churchofpeacespiritual@gmail.com by the 3rd week of the month. We will gladly feature it in our newsletter.

Many Blessings,

Charvonne

Church of Peace, A Spiritualist Center is dedicated to the research of Spiritualism.

Through our research we discovered that the Rev. Bertha Crear, was the First Black American Spiritualist to hold credentials with the National Spiritualist Association and Spiritualist National Union in 1922. We were able to gather information about her and her contributions to Spiritualism. While researching, we discovered that there was only a cement number marking her burial spot in Columbus, Ohio. This saddened us.

We decided to have a fundraiser to purchase her a headstone.

If you feel moved to contribute, you can use PayPal:

churchofpeacespiritual@gmail.com

The ultimate goal is $3,500 for the headstone including the taxes and fees associated with it.

"Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women" by Allison E. Bell

The Movement

Have you seen the acronym MMIW and wondered what the letters stood for? MMIW is a movement, and the letters stand for Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women. The red handprint across a woman's face in a photograph or drawing represents the MMIW movement. Like other women from groups of color, you rarely see stories about these women in the news and when you do, it is usually for a very brief period. There is a crisis right outside of our collective scope of vision that deserves and needs to be talked about with resources given to fighting this issue and educating the public at large. What is dangerous to one is dangerous to all!

Statistics

Murder rates for Indigenous women are ten times the national average in the United States. In a 2017 Center for Disease Control study, it was found that homicide was the leading cause of death for indigenous girls ages one through nineteen and the sixth cause of death for indigenous women aged twenty to fourth-four. A study funded by the National Institute of Justice by showed that four out five indigenous women in the United States were the victim of violence during their lifetime. This is a much higher rate than that of women of other ethnic backgrounds.

The states with the top ten largest populations of Native Americans include in the order of largest to smallest: Arizona; California; Oklahoma; New Mexico; Texas; North Carolina; Alaska; Washington; South Dakota and New York. Arizona's indigenous women are at a high risk for many reasons: (1) They are near the border of Mexico; (2) They are fetishized; (3) They are targets for human trafficking; and (4) numerous jurisdictions issues. Arizona is the home of twenty-two federally recognized tribes. Jurisdiction is a complicated issue in all states with federally recognized tribes, but even more so when there are many tribes in a state. This is because there are so many potential jurisdictions that could have an interest in the matter of a missing or murdered indigenous person. Such jurisdictions include the federal government, state government, local government that is non-tribal and local tribal government.

“Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women” by Allison E. Bell con’t

Since it is not a crime for an adult to go missing voluntarily, law enforcement agencies do not begin looking for missing adults with the same vigor and sense of urgency as they would a child. When you add race, gender and socioeconomic factors into the mix, the efforts frequently diminish exponentially. In a perfect world, every human would be valued and valued equally. We have never lived in a perfect world. We live in a world where the word “equity” is misunderstood and the concept is completely beyond true comprehension and impossible for many to visualize or hope for. In the television program “Alaska Daily” starring Hilary Swank, there is an episode where blonde, white woman and dark-haired indigenous woman go missing around the same period. The newspaper covers both stories and highlights the stark differences in the search for each woman.

At the end of the 2017 movie Wind River which takes place on the Wind River Indian Reservation in Wyoming, a note states “.....that missing persons statistics are kept for every demographic group except for Native American women, whose numbers remain unknown.” The movie is about a missing and murdered indigenous woman. A sequel to the movie entitled Wind River: The Next Chapter will begin filming in 2023.

The rates of missing and murdered indigenous women in Canada are also higher than their national average .

Government Involvement

On March 1, 2022, President Biden signed into law the Violence Against Women Act (VAWA) Reauthorization Act of 2022, a bipartisan legislation passed by Congress as part of the Omnibus appropriations package. The VAWA has been one of the driving forces of his career. As a U.S. senator, he wrote and championed the original act which was passed into law in 1994. The Act has been modified on multiple occasions. The following statement was taken from the Fact Sheet on the act and can be found on the White House website at www.whitehouse.gov.

“The 2022 reauthorization of VAWA strengthens this landmark law, including by:

- Reauthorizing all current VAWA grant programs until 2027 and, in many cases, increasing authorization levels.
- Expanding special criminal jurisdiction of Tribal courts to cover non-Native perpetrators of sexual assault, child abuse, stalking, sex trafficking, and assaults on tribal law enforcement officers on tribal lands; and supporting the development of a pilot project to enhance access to safety for survivors in Alaska Native villages.
- Increasing services and support for survivors from underserved and marginalized communities—including for LGBTQ+ survivors of domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault and stalking; funding survivor-centered, community-based restorative practice services; and increasing support for culturally specific services and services in rural communities.
- Establishing a federal civil cause of action for individuals whose intimate visual images are disclosed without their consent, allowing a victim to recover damages and legal fees; creating a new National Resource Center on Cybercrimes Against Individuals; and supporting State, Tribal, and local government efforts to prevent and prosecute cybercrimes, including cyberstalking and the nonconsensual distribution of intimate images.
- Improving prevention and response to sexual violence, including through increased support for the Rape Prevention and Education Program and Sexual Assault Services Program; expansion of prevention education for students in institutions of higher education; and enactment of the Fairness for Rape Kit Backlog Survivors Act, which requires state victim compensation programs to allow sexual assault survivors to file for compensation without being unfairly penalized due to rape kit backlogs.
- Strengthening the application of evidence-based practices by law enforcement in responding to gender-based violence, including by promoting the use of trauma-informed, victim-centered training and improving homicide reduction initiatives.

SPIRITUALISM: YESTERDAY, TODAY AND TOMORROW

Yeshua of Nazareth, A Spiritual Healer, Medium, and Teacher (4 B.C. to 30 A.D.) by Angela Gunshore, MA

Spiritualists have always acknowledged the history connected to the man named Yeshua. Spiritualists believe that Yeshua or Jesus was a rabbi and scholar of Judaism and Spirituality, a known healer, a medium and prophet who demonstrated both physical and mental phenomena, and a teacher whose words have inspired millions of people over the last two thousand years.

Yeshua was raised in the Jewish faith during the time of the Roman Republic and lived in different areas of the Middle East. He stayed faithful to his Jewish beliefs throughout his life. He never proclaimed himself a god or asked people to pray to him, but he encouraged people to love unconditionally. He encouraged those on earth to live better and to forgive others. He appealed to the common people of his time because he discussed that the spiritual afterlife was one of peace, healing and love and that anyone can access. Yeshua rejected materialism, chastised any religious leader who displayed greed and encouraged a humble and simple existence. His spiritual views were not often accepted and usually feared by those in power. This fear led to his murder.

During his life, Yeshua was recorded as inspiring love, light, and reformation to all who listened. He was a social activist who accepted those that society rejected, and he socialized and worked with the outcasts, the unclean and believed in equality. He worked with both genders as disciples in his ministry which was proven by archeologists in modern times with discovery of writings about Yeshua/Jesus, from women authors like Mary of Magdalena.

Spiritualists know that everyone is connected to Infinite Intelligence and is reminded by Yeshua, of this belief, when he referred to his followers as being his brothers and sisters. His teachings confirm that anyone could develop a relationship with the God/ Infinite Intelligence and spoke publicly about how this connection was accessible and available to all at anytime.

The man known as Jesus of Nazareth demonstrated physical phenomenon through out his life. His final phenomena documented through his appearance to his family and friends after his burial, not only proved the existence of life after death, but that life continues beyond the physical world. Due to the eyewitness accounts of Yeshua/Jesus's teachings, healing, mediumship, and physical phenomena, Spiritualists celebrate his birth on this earth and the phenomena of his resurrection from the dead.

Spiritualists do participate in holidays with other groups who honor the memory of Yeshua or Jesus the Nazarene but differs from other religions that celebrate his life. Spiritualists do not view Yeshua as a god or a savior. Spiritualists know that individuals should take personal responsibility for their actions while on this earth and make a change when needed. Spiritualists believe that an individual creates their own happiness and unhappiness. Learning about Yeshua and his teachings only confirms for Spiritualists that they can heal and correct their own life and choose to live better in this world or the next.
